History will be made

Election. PC hoping for a 12th consecutive majority government

One way or another, Alison Redford makes history on Monday night.

Win the Alberta election and she is the first elected female premier in the province, heading up a party that has run things for four decades and will soon shatter the record for longest-serving government in Canadian history.

Lose and she's Harry Strom, the forgotten scapegoated premier of the Alberta Social Credit government when it fell to the Tories in 1971.

Redford, speaking at a weekend party rally, said she is pushing ahead and doesn't feel the weight of history.

"I'm pretty excited about Monday," she said.

"This is a campaign about Alberta's future.

The Wildrose party, under leader Danielle Smith, have fashioned an electable alternative by capitalizing on discontent over deficit budgets, long health-care wait times, onerous land-use rules, and perceived political greed on salary and perks.

Some polls have had them ahead by more than 15 points, though that lead appears to have slipped somewhat recently.

If the Wildrose wins, it will defeat a colossus whose history can only be told in large numbers and superlatives.

The PCs have held power in Alberta for 14,847 days — 40 years and almost eight months. That's 1.3 trillion seconds for those so chronologically inclined. Should they win a 12th consecutive majority government, they will be on track to make history.

When the next election rolls around, they will have been in power close to 45 years, ahead of the 1882-1925 Nova Scotia Liberals (43 years) and the 1943-1985 Ontario PCs (42 years).

But political observers say the 40-year milestone has now become a bit of a millstone.

"It's been monolithic control of the machinery of government by one political party for over 40 years," said political scientist Chaldeans Mensah, with Grant MacEwan University.

"That creates its own political culture, it creates a network of connections, it creates a political ethos in terms of how things are done."

Election. Timeline

A look at the twists and turns of a wild Alberta election campaign:

Day 1, March 26: Alberta Premier Alison Redford drops the writ setting voting day for April 23. The Wildrose busy bus makes its late-night debut.

Day 4, March 29: Redford declares unconditional surrender on the so-called no-meet committee and transition allowances. She says all PC members of the committee will have to pay all the money back.

Day 5, March 30: Conservative staffer Amanda Wilkie tweets: "If @ElectDanielle likes young and growing families so much, why doesn't she have children of her own? #wrp family pack insincere #abvote."

Day 6, March 31: Smith issues a news release saying she and her husband tried, but couldn't have children. Wilkie resigns. Redford calls Smith to apologize.

Day 8, April 2: The Dani-dollar pledge: The Wildrose party promises to cut a cheque to every man, woman and child, when energy revenues create a budget surplus. If things go according to plan, Albertans would get a $300 cheque in 2015.

Day 10, April 4: Conscience rights emerge as an issue. Smith won't say where she stands on the controversial issue.

Day 16, April 10: After being dogged by social issues, Smith tells a candidates forum in her constituency that she is pro-choice and pro-gay marriage.

Day 21, April 15: The Wildrose face questions over an anti-gay blog post by candidate Allan Hunsperger, suggesting gays and lesbians would die "in the lake of fire, hell, a place of eternal suffering."

Day 22, April 16: Smith casts doubt on the widely accepted scientific theory that human activity is a leading cause of global warming.

Day 23, April 17: Wildrose Calgary candidate Ron Leech apologizes for suggesting he has an advantage in his constituency because he is white.

MLA hopefuls make final push for votes

Edmonton-Glenora. Of 19 ridings in Edmonton, this five-way race is one to watch: Candidates

HEATHER MCINTYRE

From door knocking to delivering last-minute lawn signs, provincial election candidates were busy Sunday making a final push.

Voters go to the polls Monday.

In Edmonton-Glenora, labelled a riding to watch, all five candidates were on the go. "It's been a long nine months," Alberta Party candidate Sue Huff said of her campaign preparation. "And then a 28-day sprint."

She said undecided voters are still answering the doors.

"Vote for the person you believe who will do the best job," she said of what she's told constituents. "If everyone does, we will have the right person."

But vote splitting is something most are expecting.

NDP candidate Ray Martin said his campaign's assessment is it's a race between him and Progressive Conservative incumbent Heather Klimchuk. "The Wildrose is probably a third, but distant," said Martin. "But I think we all know, in this riding especially, how the splits occur."

"I won by 99 votes," Klimchuk said of her 2008 win. "Every vote counts."

She defeated Liberal Bruce Miller, who held the seat previously.

"It always counts here," said Miller. "It was close last time and turnout wasn't very good."

"It's kind of hard to predict, for the results."

Wildrose candidate Don Koziak agrees. "As a candidate, it's interesting," he said. "I wouldn't even want to rate the candidates in this riding on how they'll finish. It could go any way."

Voter information

- Along with marking a ballot for an MLA, voters will be electing one of three Senate nominees.
- Anyone unsure where to vote can go online to Alberta.ab.ca and click "Where Do I Vote."
- Voter turnout in the 2008 provincial election was the lowest in history at 41 per cent.

The festival allowed Biollo to show his children just how much can be done when it comes to living green.

"I'm trying to teach that to them," he said.

This year's version of the festival drew thousands, estimated organizer Janice Shoultis.

Election 2012

Advanced ballot turnout may set record: Official

Elections Alberta won't have a definitive number of how many citizens cast a ballot in provincial-election advanced polls until Monday evening, but anecdotally they believe turnout is "way up."

"In the last election, we saw a record turnout (at advanced polls) even though we had the lowest overall turnout in the country at 42.2 per cent," said spokesperson Drew Westwater, referring to 64,332 advanced ballots cast in 2008.

Council. Traffic-signal project would quicken response to fires: Report

Fire crews would respond to calls quicker if a traffic-signal pilot project is put in place, says a report going before a council committee Monday.

A traffic-light-preemption system using GPS technology would provide automatic intersection signal control, says the report, turning lights green at upcoming intersections via transponder equipment.

It means vehicles ahead of the responding fire vehicles will be able to clear the intersection, making not only for a quicker response but likely fewer collisions as well.

A number of departments throughout North America have the technology, and some recorded response time improvements between 16 and 30 per cent, says the report.

The pilot would cost $585,000 for a select number of vehicles, approved last November pending this information report.

Expansion would likely follow the pilot.

'Vegas' MP's story proves power of time

NDP MP Ruth Ellen Brosseau listens to a citizen speak about concerns over float-plane noise in her riding. PAUL CHIASSON/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Progress. A year later, Ruth Ellen Brosseau is speaking French and plans to run for the next federal election.

Spend a day with rookie NDP MP Ruth Ellen Brosseau and witness the degree to which someone's life can change in 12 months.

It was a year ago this week that Brosseau was making regular phone calls home from Las Vegas, where she was celebrating her 27th birthday under the bright lights of Sin City. Those calls brought news that turned her life upside down.

"Of course being a mom,

I called home all the time and spoke to my son and my family," said Brosseau. "They were kind of like: 'There's, um, stuff going on here — you're kind of in the news a bit for going on your trip.'"

Brosseau, then a campus-bar manager in Ottawa, was hit with a stunner. Her name and photo were splashed all over the national news during Canada's ongoing federal election campaign, during which she emerged as a poster child for the NDP's improbable Quebec surge.

Little did she know that roughly one year later, she would be spending a busy day in a rural Quebec riding — a place to which she had no personal connection — discussing pyrite, float planes, federal summer jobs and an art exhibition with local constituents.

Entering that campaign a year ago, even the term "underdog" would have been charitable to describe Brosseau and a few dozen other Quebec NDP candidates. She hadn't knocked on doors, hadn't spent a dime on her campaign and had never even set foot in the riding she was vying for.

Allegations also spread that Brosseau couldn't speak French, even though the constituency was 98 per cent francophone.

But a so-called "orange wave" rolled in around the same time Brosseau was on that late-April trip. A few days later, that wave swept her to victory in the Berthier-Maskinonge riding, in what was perhaps the biggest upset of the election.

It was while she vacationed in Las Vegas that the first hints of the intense media interest in her story started to sink in. Brosseau read a few of the news stories about her untimely, mid-campaign trip.

She tried, however, to keep herself from reading too much.

"I didn't want to pay too much attention to it because I didn't want to get too stressed," Brosseau said.

She appears to have grown into her new job and, given the French lessons she's been taking, original claims about her lack of proficiency in the language now appear exaggerated.

Police moved swiftly to shut down a protest in Montreal on Saturday, a day after a series of violent clashes between demonstrators and officers in riot gear created havoc in the downtown core.

Electoral watchdog rejects MP's request

Vote controversy.

Elections watchdog responds to a Liberal MP's request to overturn election results.

Procedural irregularities shouldn't be sufficient grounds to overturn the results of an election, argues chief electoral officer Marc Mayrand in a factum filed in response to a defeated Liberal MP's attempt to invalidate the results of last May's election in his Toronto riding.

Mayrand argues that Parliament intended the provision to be applied sparingly. "It is important that elections not be overturned lightly."

He says Parliament recognized that "administrative and clerical errors in elections will be common and, indeed, inevitable and it is essential that only those consequential to the result be used to overturn an election." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two brothers accused of beating a black teenager while patrolling an Orthodox Jewish neighbourhood are set to go on trial Monday in a case with similarities to the shooting of a black teenager in Florida that has drawn national attention.

The brothers, who are white and Jewish, have claimed self-defence, saying the teen was holding a nail-studded board.

Local civil-rights activists hope the Florida case will draw more attention to what they believe was racial profiling by neighbourhood-watch vigilantes.

Eliyahu and Avi Werdesheim are accused of beating a 15-year-old boy who was walking through a Baltimore neighbourhood in November 2010.

The brothers pulled up next to the teen in a vehicle, then got out and "surrounded him," according to charging documents.

Le Pen was in third with 19.2 per cent of the vote so far.

In fourth place was leftist firebrand Jean-Luc Melenchon with 10.8 per cent, followed by centrist Francois Bayrou with 9.2 per cent.

Democratic primary

At this time in 2008, Obama was still in an epic primary battle against his Secretary of State Hillary Clinton.

- This year, Obama's march to the nomination has generated little interest because he has no major primary challenger, no one who made the ballot in more than a handful of states.
- Democratic voters, however, are not unanimously behind the American president. In Oklahoma, anti-abortion protester Randall Terry got 18 per cent of the vote. But some say he's not a real Democrat.

It's official: U.S. President Barack Obama will clinch the Democratic nomination for president on Tuesday, ending a low-key primary race that many people probably didn't realize was happening.

Obama is certain to reach the 2,778 delegates he needs to secure his party's nod for a second time when five states vote on Tuesday.

He has won almost every delegate so far, with a few exceptions in some Southern states that won't vote Democratic in the fall regardless.

Dutch train collision. Woman dies of injuries, 16 in hospital after crash

A 68-year-old woman died Sunday of injuries a day after two trains collided head-on in Amsterdam — a crash a top rail official described as one of the worst train disasters in the Netherlands' recent history.

Scores of people were injured when the two trains slammed into one another. Amsterdam Mayor Eberhard van der Laan said 16 people who were seriously injured in the crash remained hospitalized Sunday afternoon. He gave no details of the injuries.

The crash Saturday evening involved a double-decker intercity train and a commuter train.

"Two trains colliding on the same track is a nightmare," said Bert Meerstadt, director of national railroad operator NS, before news of the woman's death.

Meerstadt declined to speculate on what caused the collision. He said crash investigators would study black-box recorders on both trains.

The accident happened near a popular park on a busy stretch of track close to Amsterdam's Central Station where trains generally do not travel at full speed. Two separate investigations will focus on whether human error or a mechanical problem led to the collision.

Myanmar's elected lawmakers refuse seats over dispute

Protest. Democracy party to boycott opening session of Parliament over constitutional oath that enshrines military power

Democracy icon Aung San Suu Kyi and the rest of her party's newly elected lawmakers will not attend Monday's opening session of Parliament because they object to wording in their oath of office, which says they must "safeguard" the constitution, party officials said Sunday.

Suu Kyi's National League for Democracy party wants to see the constitution changed because it enshrines military power and came into force in 2008 during an era of iron-fisted army rule.

The absence from parliament of Suu Kyi and 42 other elected lawmakers who won historic April 1 by-elections was expected. The party had already said it would not attend the assembly session until the issue is resolved.

Suu Kyi's party wants phrasing in the lawmakers' oath changed from "safeguard the constitution" to "respect the constitution."

Party officials have played down the problem, saying they still expect the lawmakers to attend the assembly, possibly this week or next. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Uneasy democracy

Fighting military influence

The oath is in an appendix to the constitution, and it is unclear whether it can be changed without the approval of 75 per cent of parliament.

The constitution automatically allocates 25 per cent of the parliamentary seats to unelected representatives of the military, and Suu Kyi's party maintains that is undemocratic.

The document also bars people from the nation's presidency if they or any of their relatives are foreign citizens. That effectively prevents Suu Kyi from ascending to the presidency because she married a British national, Michael Aris, who died in 1999. Their two children were born abroad and do not live in Myanmar.

The byelection's outcome, in which the opposition won almost all of the 45 seats up for grabs, was considered a major step toward reconciliation after decades of military rule in Myanmar.

Murdoch to testify about political influence in U.K.

Phone-hacking scandal. Media mogul's testimony could discomfit ruling class

Rupert Murdoch's appearance before Lord Justice Brian Leveson's inquiry this week is expected to focus on the network of personal and professional ties that have bound his newspaper and television operations to some of the most senior politicians in the United Kingdom.

Those ties have frequently come under criticism, with many observers saying British politicians were scared of crossing Murdoch because of his company's domination of the British media landscape.

But those intimate ties have frayed and snapped since revelations last year that journalists at Murdoch's News of the World tabloid routinely intercepted voice-mail messages of those in the public eye. The scandal quickly spread beyond the News of the World to cover an array of other questionable activities by British journalists, as well as police and public officials.

Coulson — a former Murdoch lieutenant drafted as Prime Minister David Cameron's chief media aid — and Murdoch protege Rebekah Brooks both resigned before being arrested as two of the scandal's leading suspects, and Murdoch and his media executive son James have swapped discreet visits to No. 10 Downing Street with confrontational appearances before skeptical lawmakers in Parliament.

Once eager to secure Rupert Murdoch's blessing, Cameron has since ordered the official inquiry, which is calling Murdoch and his son in for at least two full days of testimony starting Tuesday.

Report. Wal-Mart silent on Mexico bribe scandal

Walmart hushed up a vast bribery campaign that top executives of its Mexican subsidiary carried out to build stores across that country, according to a published report.

The New York Times reported Saturday that Walmart failed to notify law-enforcement officials even after its own investigators found evidence of millions of dollars in bribes. The newspaper said the company shut down its internal probe despite a report by its lead investigator that Mexican and U.S. laws likely were violated.

The bribery campaign was reported to have first come to the attention of senior executives at Walmart in 2005, when a former executive of its largest foreign subsidiary, Walmart de Mexico, provided extensive details of a bribery campaign it had orchestrated to win market dominance.

The Mexican executive, previously the lawyer in charge of obtaining construction permits, said in emails and follow-up conversations that Walmart de Mexico paid bribes to obtain permits throughout the country in its rush to build stores nationwide, the Times reported.

The newspaper said that only after learning of its in-

Under that law, it is illegal for U.S. corporations and their subsidiaries to bribe foreign officials. Walmart, which is based in Bentonville, Ark., said Saturday that it takes compliance with that law very seriously. It also noted that many of the "alleged activities" in the Times article occurred more than six years ago.

"If these allegations are true, it is not a reflection of who we are or what we stand for," spokesman David Tovar said. "We are deeply concerned by these allegations and are working aggressively to determine what happened."

Street View comes to Israel

After months of consultations with Israeli security officials, Google has launched its popular Street View service in the country's three largest cities.

The new Street View provides images of ordinary life, contested areas and religious sites in the Holy Land. Due to security issues, areas around several sensitive sites, such as the military headquarters in Tel Aviv and the prime minister's residence in Jerusalem, are blurred out.

Google Street View is available in more than 30 countries.

Google

Israel is the first Middle Eastern nation to display its cities and streets online.

- Pictures online Sunday showed typical street scenes — and the crowded cobblestone Via Dolorosa, the path that Jesus is said to have walked before his crucifixion in Jerusalem's Old City.

It was held up in Israel by concerns that images of its streets could be used by terrorists. The Islamic Jihad militant group in Gaza, for instance, has boasted that it used Google Earth, which gives bird-eye views and some street-level pictures of sites around the world, to aim rockets at Israel.

Last August, after a panel of government ministers met for six months to draft security guidelines, Israel announced it had reached an agreement with Google.

BUREAUCRATIC TAPE IS TOO TIGHT

URBAN COMPASS
Terence Harding
edmonton@metronews.ca

A recent New York Times article shows that the city of Edmonton could learn a thing or two from the U.S. Federal Highway Administration when it comes to replacing bridges.

Using accelerated bridge construction, in Massachusetts, 14 bridges over Interstate 93 were replaced over 10 weekends.

In Boston when the River Street Bridge needed replacing, did it take months, weeks or years? No, it didn't. That bridge only took a weekend to replace as 400 tons of concrete and steel were slid into place.

You might want to think about that when you have to take a different route because both the Grieson and Argyll Road Bridges will be closed until this fall.

On a different note, as near as I can figure, the City of Edmonton operates on a Three-P approach: punishment, procrastination and prohibition.

The city certainly seems to relish being able to punish those whose behaviours don't fall into a narrow band of what it considers acceptable. If you don't shovel your sidewalk in the winter, you are going to get a fine. If you smoke near a playground, you are going to get a fine. I am sure that we will soon be able to add an anti-idling bylaw to that list.

Anything with "anti" in the title seems to move along quite quickly.

Look at how quickly the anti-smoking bylaw related to parks-and-recreation facilities was passed.

In relative terms, it was enacted in the blink of an eye.

No one asked to be shown refereed studies that indicated that there was a problem that needed to be addressed.

No health experts were asked to come and talk to city council. Smoking near playgrounds was something that had to be stopped immediately.

Now think about what happens when Tres Carnales on Rice Howard Way wants an outdoor patio. This is not a decision the city can make easily. Oh, no — there must be a study and a report and lot of bureaucratic blather as well. Apparently, making it easy for restaurants to have outdoor patios would be the first step on the slippery slope toward civic anarchy.

We live in a city that likes to talk out of both sides of its mouth. One side says it wants to be a vibrant, happening place. The other says we need more and more restrictions on the very things that could make that a reality.

Weird news

Home of 'world's rudest waiter' may still be serving

A San Francisco Chinese restaurant once known for having "the world's rudest waiter" may not be closing for good after all.

The owners of Sam Wo restaurant are scheduled to plead their case to the city's public health department at a hearing Tuesday.

Owner David Ho's daughter, Julie, told the San Francisco Chronicle that the restaurant will be closed over the weekend, but nothing is definite beyond that.

Health officials had demanded changes after finding violations including rodent activity, but the owners had said the 100-year-old eatery in Chinatown was just too old.

They had planned to serve their last meals early Saturday.

The restaurant was famous for the late Edsel Ford Fung, dubbed "the world's rudest waiter." Fung was known for insulting customers and slamming dishes on tables.

Kenya rocks London marathon

Here's a general view of runners as they go past the Cutty Sark during the Virgin London Marathon on Sunday.

Kenyan marathon runners showed their superiority ahead of the Olympics, with Wilson Kipsang and Mary Keitany coasting to victory in London on Sunday, virtually assuring that they will be selected for the games.

The winners were presented with their medals by Prince Harry, who indicated that security logistics are thwarting his attempts to enter the marathon.

- World-record holder Patrick Makau dropped out less than halfway through.
- Mary Keitany pulled away from world champion Edna Kiplagat with around five kilometres to go before winning by one minute, 13 seconds. Priscah Jeptoo was third.

A rookie actor, nevermore

Learning process.

Despite his roles in big films, Evans says he learned plenty from working with John Cusack on The Raven

scene@metronews.ca

Luke Evans hasn't been home in a while. The last two years have seen a marked increase in film work for the Welsh actor, taking him around the world to make films like The Three Musketeers, Immortals and this month's The Raven, in which he plays a straight-laced detective opposite John Cusack's Edgar Allan Poe. Evans checked in by phone from New Zealand, where he's been living for nearly a year while making

The Hobbit — and where he says he'll be until at least July. After that? Who knows?

How much of an Edgar Allen Poe fan were you before going into this project?

I was very aware of who he was and how much of an impact he made on American literature, but I hadn't read a huge amount of his work. I knew about The Raven. The Pit and the Pendulum was the one I knew as well.

What did you think of the project when you were initially approached?

I thought it was great. I thought it was a very clever way of using Poe's work and brilliant stories and making it into a fictional detective movie and showing his stories in a very clever sort of fictional backdrop. I'd always wanted to work with John Cusack, too, so the fact that he's playing Poe was a really exciting idea for me.

What are some of your favourites of Cusack's films?

Well, I love The Grifters, I love High Fidelity. They're two I really, really enjoyed. But almost all of John's work that I've watched, I've enjoyed. He's a great man to watch when he's doing his thing. He's been doing it for such a long time, you know? You can learn an awful lot, as an actor like myself, watching John do his thing.

Well, you've got a fair amount under your own belt now as well.

Yeah! Yeah, I have. It's just been very, very fast (laughs). And movies, film work — I'm still learning as I'm going along, and I'm sure I will learn for a very long time. But it is quite great when you get to work with people who've done movies for a long time because you just how watch how they play with the camera and like that, all the subtleties. I just keep watching, keep learning. But yeah, I've been acting for 12 or 13 years now. A lot of it's been in the theatre, but I try to channel what I learned there and use it in film. It's all acting at the end of the day, isn't it?

How was the experience on location for the Raven?

We started in Budapest in Hungary, and then we moved across the border to Serbia to Belgrade and also to a northern town called Novi Sad, which has a castle on the mound, and underneath the castle there's a huge bunch of tunnel networks, which is what we used in the film when... I won't give it away, but there are tunnels in the film that get used to chase... someone (laughs).

Did you feel isolated out there?

It's another difference, yeah. But Budapest is a great city, a really great city. We did a lot of night shoots in Hungary, and in the wintertime it can be cold and very windy, with a bit of snow. And it got worse because we jumped into former Yugoslavia. Serbia can get very cold. But the people are great. It's a great way to see the world. This is such a joy to me, to get a job and then go to places I would probably never have visited, and now I have. They're great, I'd go back there tomorrow.

Speaking of great locations, you're in New Zealand now. How is filming on The Hobbit going?

Filming is going very well, yeah. We're solid, solid working now. There's a lot to be done.

How have you found life in New Zealand?

I know, it's great, right? I've been here almost 10 months now, and it's such a beautiful place.

Rufus Wainwright gets a little 'pop' with the help of Mark Ronson

New album.

Singer-songwriter enlists the help of hitmaker Ronson in a bid for the mainstream ear

Rufus Wainwright is touting the release of what he calls his most pop-leaning album yet, but the eclectic singer-songwriter is far from quitting his ambitious foray into the classical world.

The 38-year-old crooner says he's set to pen another opera, but the details are staying under wraps, for now.

"I've been commissioned to write another one, there'll be announcements about that at some point," Wainwright says cryptically during a round of recent media interviews in Toronto.

"I don't think you can kind of step into that arena and just step right out again. I think that would be very, very cowardly."

In the meantime, Wainwright returns to the pop sphere this week with his brightly melodic album, Out of the Game, an unabashedly mainstream bid shepherded by hit-making uber-producer Mark Ronson.

The 12-song disc is infused with a '70s flourish and Wainwright's trademark honey-toned vocals, which weave around evocative vignettes of life with boyfriend Jorn Weisbrodt (Song of You), new baby girl Viva (Montauk) and mourn the loss of his recently deceased mother, singer Kate McGarrigle (Candles).

Musically, the typically bittersweet Wainwright says he strove to create a more commercially bent collection, describing Out of the Game as "something that you can put on at a party and people won't leave the room."

Sound

Making music a little bit brighter

Rufus Wainwright's newest album is a bit escapist. "Right before this album came out I had written an opera and done a solo piano voice tour, buried my mom, had a baby, you know, so I was really entrenched in these huge adult issues," he notes.

"For this album I really just wanted to have a good time and kind of rock out and be silly for a little while," he adds. "And though the record still has that custom-Rufus romantic sadness, I think it's a little more upbeat and brighter than my past work."

What happens when mom watches your love scenes

It's one thing to have a steamy love scene in your new film, but it's another to have to watch it with your mom.

"We saw the film together and I was kind of squirming," Zac Efron tells People magazine about seeing his latest movie, The Lucky One, with his family in tow.

"Even though my mom was a couple of seats down from me, I tried to duck out during those scenes because it was too embarrassing. Obviously I'm acting, but knowing that my mom and my family were watching is kind of awkward. There's really no way around it."

So what did Mama Efron think of her son's performance?

"She was just laughing about it — in a good way," he says. "She said, 'That's my boy!' I think she was proud of me at the end of it, even if it was weird for her to watch."

When a woman recently accused Lindsay Lohan of assaulting her at a nightclub, Lohan's response was simple: She couldn't have, since she was at home watching TV at the time.

"Investigators obtained the surveillance video from the Smoke & Mirrors night-

Breakfast

Sunny outlook for outlets catering to millennial market

More Canadians eat breakfast on the run and it's the 20-something group that's driving the trend, says a market researcher group. A study by the NPD Group shows growth among quick-service restaurants for the morning meal. NPD predicts that segment of the market will grow 10 per cent by 2016.

The study, A Look into the Future of Foodservice, finds that nine per cent of the population prefers to pick up its morning meal at outlets, and this has led to a 14 per cent increase in breakfast sales in the past year.

What drives mommy to reach for a drink?

Blog. After having babies four months apart, two life-long friends teamed up to offer an unfiltered look at being new moms

MACPHERSON
For Metro News

Two bloggers with new babies have put a comedic spin on some real issues women are facing when it comes to motherhood.

Lyranda Martin Evans and Fiona Stevenson, friends for 20 years, are the co-authors of reasonsmommydrinks.com, an honest and unfiltered blog about what it's really like to be a new mom.

"Being on maternity leave is the hardest job in the world," says Evans. "If I had to do mat-leave by myself, I think I would have gone nuts."

The two friends both had baby boys, four months apart.

"In my group of friends, there was a group of 2011 babies," says Evans. "I was really lucky. Women love to help each other out."

After attending high school, Queens University and then training at the Second City conservatory comedy program together, it only makes sense Evans and Stevenson would team up for this blog.

Both are unafraid to make racy quips and expose a more realistic image of being a mom.

The writers take personal experiences and stories from mom groups to create a witty list of more than 50 "reasons why mommy drinks."

"It's very cathartic," says Evans. "At the time, it's the worst moment of the day, but it becomes funny."

The blog's name is somewhat controversial, but Evans sees it as a comedic device, playing on the expression "I need a drink!"

"We wanted to have a good hook. It's all written tongue-in-cheek."

"The blog is really about how much we love them [kids]. We're trying to be perfect for them."

Reason #38: The Babysitter

"Mommy can't believe she's going to pay a teenager $40 to sit in her living room for three hours (texting her boyfriend and eating Mommy's cappuccino frozen yogurt directly from the tub) while you lie sleeping in your crib upstairs the entire time. But Mommy and Daddy figured that to avoid becoming a statistic, they should spend the occasional Saturday night doing something other than eating take-out Thai food in front of Grey's Anatomy, only to doze off before the latest iteration of "doctor rips off nurse's clothes in the medical supply room." Dressed in her standby LBD and rocking her volumizing mascara, Mommy's feeling pretty hot, until the sitter with Angelina legs sprouting from a skirt the size of a Bella Band greets her..."

Catch of the day makes for easy weeknight dinner

This recipe makes two servings. THE CANADIAN PRESS H/O

Sweet and spicy, this catfish only needs a medley of vegetables served along with it or a crisp green salad for an easy weeknight meal.

1. In a small bowl, mix together Dijon and Creole mustards, honey and vinegar. Spread mustard mixture over top of fillets and arrange potato slices over mustard, pushing down gently so potato sticks.

2. In a non-stick skillet, heat oil over medium-high heat. Carefully place fillets potato-side down in skillet and pan-fry for 5 minutes.

3. Remove fillets and place on parchment-paper-lined baking sheet. Bake in centre of 180 C (350 F) oven for about 12 minutes, until potatoes are golden and fish flakes easily when tested with a fork.

4. Apple and Jalapeno Glaze: Meanwhile, in a small saucepan combine apple jelly, water, apple and jalapeno and simmer on

Want your kids to keep learning after school? Here are two trends

Archery. Hunger Games heroine Katniss makes archery cool for kids (minus the hunger and killing stuff)

In schools and backyards, for their birthdays and out with their dads, kids are going for archery four weeks into the box office run of The Hunger Games and less than 100 days before the London Olympics.

"All of a sudden sales of bows have tripled," said Paul Haines, a salesman at the Ramsey Outdoor store in Paramus, N.J.

A manager there made a sign for the hunting department: "Quality bows for serious archers and girls who saw the movie."

Archery ranges around the country have enjoyed a steady uptick among kids of both sexes since the movie began cleaning up at the box office March 23, though heroine Katniss — a deadly shot with an arrow — seems to resonate more with girls.

"Katniss is so inspiring," said Gabby Lee, who asked for archery lessons for her 12th birthday in February after reading the popular book trilogy by Suzanne Collins.

"I'm not very sportsy," she said, but now she belongs to a youth archery league near her Hasbrouck Heights, N.J., home. "It feels really good because I'm usually the girl who sits and reads."

While some young archers have been doing it for years, motivated by generations of hunters in their families, the parents of others love it for its focus, independence and because they, too, have kids not drawn to more typical team or contact sports.

At seven, Christa Mattessich is too young for the gruesome dystopian world that thrusts 16-year-old Katniss and her fellow youths into the arena for a battle to the death — a battle Katniss wins thanks to the archery skills she honed while hunting game in the woods of her native District 12.

But Christa loves archery just as much and has been shooting for about two years at Targeteers Archery in Saddle Brook, N.J., her dad Anthony Mattessich said.

"I'm an avid bow hunter," he said. "At her age, with other sports, they're just running with each other and chasing a ball, then the ice cream truck comes and that's that. For archery, they're a little bit more dedicated."

Like more than 2 million kids in nearly every state and several other countries, Abbey took archery in gym class this year as part of the decade-old National Archery in the Schools program that trains teachers in the sport and offers discounts on equipment.

"There's a lot of buzz among young people about archery right now. They want to shoot bows and arrows so badly, they're willing to follow the rules," said Roy Grimes, the organization's president.

Knitting. Purling is hip again, as a new generation turns to the clack of the needles

Move over, knitting grannies. Yarn harlots, crochet chicks and knit nerds are taking over and they're not knitting baby booties or crocheting doilies.

More young people are taking up the "stitch and bitch" craft, making everything from conventional scarves and mittens to purses and wraps.

Growth seems to be highest among knitters like Allison Krause Danielsen — 20-somethings looking to express their creativity, reject cheap mass consumerism and decompress in a way that doesn't depend on the technology they are immersed in all day.

Krause Danielsen, a 29-year-old Winnipeg resident, learned to knit at an early age but didn't really take it up seriously until she hit university.

"I've got my iPhone and my computer but it's something that's more tangible and tactile that you can do and it's productive," she said.

"In this age of just being able to go to the dollar store and buy something you can throw away, you have something more valuable if you've knit it yourself."

The Craft Yarn Council of America says young women in their 20s are fuelling yarn sales across the country. Between 2002 and 2004, the council's annual surveys found knitters between the ages of 25 to 34 jumped 150 per cent. Its most recent survey found expressing creativity is what draws this cohort to take up the craft.

Lori Franko, a member who helps run the Ram Wool Co-op in Winnipeg, said their customers range from 20 years old to 90. But in recent years, she said the shop is seeing younger knitters seeking skeins of yarn.

Much of the growing popularity is thanks to the Internet, Franko said. Younger, web-savvy knitters can go online and find everything from free patterns to blogs to chat rooms with advice and support. The web helps feed the do-it-yourself movement that's afoot among younger people, Franko said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Green living — dollhouse-style

Next-generation toys. Dollhouse with different types of green themes helps educate kids as they play

life@metronews.ca

For young children, play is serious business. It's what they do — and how they learn.

That's why PlanToys, an innovative maker of eco-friendly playthings, has created the ultimate green dollhouse.

"The PlanToys dollhouse shows many different types of eco-themes," explains Cal Nicholson, sales and marketing specialist at Playwell Canada.

PlanToys is making eco-friendly dollhouses for tomorrow's generation.

"It's got a windmill, a solar shade, solar panels, recycling buckets — even the furniture inside features cotton that is all organic."

The concept is deliciously simple.

Along with all the social skills and imagination any good dollhouse fosters, this one turns sustainability into a basic, everyday concept — taken as a given from very early in life.

"The reality is that for the kids, the dollhouse is something cool to play with," Nicholson says.

"But the really big thing about PlanToys actually is about the parents. They know that the eco-credentials of this product are among the highest on the planet, and they feel really good about buying it."

The dollhouse is made from rubber wood trees from Thailand. Normally, these are burned for charcoal once they reach the end of their productive life. Instead, PlanToys uses their chemical-free wood to build toys that are tough, lasting — and very green.

"Using chemicals goes completely against the green feature of the product, and they're only using soy inks or natural water-based colours," notes Nicholson. "All the packaging is recycled and recyclable."

The dollhouse isn't cheap — averaging around $200, depending on the retailer. But it's also very durable.

"You're buying a product that is Earth-friendly, that has high quality, and it's evergreen in the sense that kids are going to play with it for a long time. It's not a Walmart item that's going to get thrown away or broken in two weeks."

Nicholson sees the PlanToys dollhouse as an investment in the future — in more ways than one.

"This is something that can be played with by younger siblings or passed on to future generations," he explains. "PlanToys' whole model is sustainable play — in terms of the product itself, and also for the environment."

Child's play, in other words.

Bruins win in OT to force Game 7

Tyler Seguin scored at 3:17 of overtime, Tim Thomas made 36 saves, and the Boston Bruins beat the Washington Capitals 4-3 on Sunday to tie the first-round Eastern Conference playoff series at three games apiece.

The defending Stanley Cup champion Bruins never trailed, but needed a stolen pass and a deft bit of skating to finally get the decisive goal and avoid being eliminated by the seventh-seeded Capitals.

Game 7 is Wednesday night in Boston.

In overtime, David Krejci intercepted a pass by Nicklas Backstrom and sent the puck to Milan Lucic, who passed ahead to Seguin.

Seguin, who entered the game without a point in the series, veered slightly to his right to draw goaltender Braden Holtby from the net, then lifted a shot past the rookie to win it.

That kept alive Boston's bid to become the first team to win successive Stanley Cups since the Detroit Red Wings in 1997-98.

Kings conquer Canucks

NHL. Los Angeles puts Vancouver's Presidents' Trophy-winning season to bed

Jarret Stoll scored 4:27 into overtime as the Los Angeles Kings came back to beat the Vancouver Canucks 2-1 in the fifth game of the Western Conference quarter-final series Sunday night.

The underdog Kings took the best-of-seven series 4-1, spoiling Vancouver's hopes of a return to the Stanley Cup final.

Stoll scored on a wrist shot from the wing on a turnover at the Canucks' blue-line. The L.A. forward skated in on a 2-on-1, but took the shot himself, picking the top-left corner behind Vancouver goalie Cory Schneider.

Los Angeles completed a major upset after finishing eighth in the regular season while the Canucks placed first in the Western Conference and overall for the second season in a row.

"To be honest, it doesn't matter if you lose the seventh game of the finals or you lose in five in the first round, it's devastating," said Daniel Sedin. "We have the mindset to win every year. When you end up on the losing side it's tough."

Brad Richardson also scored for the Kings, who trailed 1-0 after 40 minutes. Richardson tied it up 3:21 into the third period. Goalie Jonathan Quick made 26 saves to earn the win.

Henrik Sedin scored the lone Canucks goal, while Schneider stopped 35 shots.

"If you play the way we did in the last three every game you'll be in every game and then our skill is going to take over," said Henrik Sedin.

"In the first game we took way too many penalties. In the second the power play cost us the game. If you do that in a seven-game series, you give away two games, you've got to win four out of five and that's tough when they don't give you an inch out there."

The Canucks capitalized on their second power play as the Henrik Sedin put in a cross-ice pass from his brother Daniel at 14:04 of the first period.

Both goalies stole the show in the second as neither team could score before Richardson drew the Kings even 3:21 into the third. He tapped in a pass from Drew Doughty after the Kings defenceman deked and circled around Canucks defender Keith Ballard and passed the puck back to Richardson from the end line.

Claude Giroux had his coach call him the best player in the world.

Giroux needed one shift to prove that claim is more than hometown hype.

He flattened Sidney Crosby only five seconds into the game, buried his sixth goal of the series past Marc-Andre Fleury 27 seconds later, and led a Philadelphia Flyers charge into the second round.

Giroux wrapped up a dominant series with a goal and two assists, Ilya Bryzgalov had his first outstanding effort in net and the Flyers beat the 108-point Pittsburgh Penguins 5-1 on Sunday to win their Eastern Conference opening-round series in six games.

"G is a very special player," Bryzgalov said. "There's not very many players like that in the world."

Giroux strapped the Flyers to his 24-year-old back and gave the team an opening shift to remember. In a series where no lead was safe, the Flyers scored the first three goals and made it stand behind stout defence and stellar play out of Bryzgalov.

Bryzgalov allowed 20 goals in the first five games. He settled down in Game 6 and gave up only Evgeni Malkin's goal in the second period.

The Flyers had stormed out to a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven series before Pittsburgh won two straight.

"We needed to play perfect hockey to stay in this series, to win this series, and we didn't get the kind of start we needed today," Crosby said. "We felt like we could get it back to Pittsburgh, and now we have some time to think about why we didn't."

"My favourite part is reporting the weather. It fascinates me, and as we know around here, it's always changing, keeping forecasters on their toes." WEEKDAYS 5:30 AM

Horoscope

♈ Aries | March 21 - April 20.

This is a week for getting things done, not fretting needlessly.

♉ Taurus | April 21 - May 21.

Usually you keep your feelings to yourself but over the next few days you will surprise a few people — and maybe yourself — by how easily you open up emotionally.

♊ Gemini | May 22 - June 20.

Enrich yourself and enrich other people too.

♋ Cancer | June 21 - July 22.

Romance is in the air: feel it, breathe it, enjoy it.

♌ Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22.

If you intend to make major changes this week it will pay you to let partners and loved ones know well in advance.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22.

The more confident you are the more people you will attract to your side.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22.

A family or financial matter that has been causing you concern will disappear off your radar today, never to return.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21.

Your one and only priority today is to have a good time.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec. 21.

If your instincts tell you a certain course of action is right then that is what you must do — even if the rest of the world screams "Don't do it!"

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan. 20.

The odds may seem stacked against you at the moment but it's an illusion.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21 - Feb. 18.

You may think that people are talking behind your back, and you may think that someone in authority has got it in for you, but that just shows you think too much.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20.

If you are the kind of Pisces who needs to be told that you are loved and appreciated then this will be a wonderful day. Almost everyone in your life wants to be nice to you. Why? Because you deserve it, that's why. SALLY BROMPTON
